SANITARY WARE WORKERS PLAN TO SEEK WAGE SCALE RAISE

Tunnel Kiln Question is Also Considered At Potters' Convention.

AGGREGATOR PROBLEM
Several Resolutions Pertaining to Kiln Work are Adopted.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 10.—Concessions in both employment conditions and wages will be sought by the sanitary branch of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters when the biennial agreement is discussed at a conference with the Sanitary Manufacturers' association in October, following action taken during the 30th annual convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters now in session here, it was predicted Saturday.

A tentative agreement to replace the present scale which expires November 1, will be framed. A readjustment of the piece work scale granting sanitary workers a substantial increase in wages will be embodied in the new proposal.

With the tunnel kiln rapidly replacing the old-type kiln, an effort will be made at the seaboard meet to reach a way of determining a day's work in placing the new tunnel kiln. Resolutions adopted Friday dealt principally with the question of wages. It was asked that the aggregrators be relieved of the expense of carrying saggers to the kilns and this cost be borne by the manufacturers. Another resolution asked that aggregrators' helpers be designated as apprentice helpers and that the wages of such helpers for their first six months at the trade be paid by the manufacturers.

A satisfactory day rate for aggregrators working on sagger-making machines, or after sagger-maker helping machines will be urged. This phase is something new in the trade and there is no definite scale.

The manufacturers will be asked to establish a different ratio for apprentices for sanitary potters. The present ratio is one to six journeymen, and one to every ten is the proposed change. It is contended that there are more apprentices than required by the trade and that the new ratio will fully meet the need.

Another resolution recommended that the day's work in making ware by the casting process be fixed at

Allen McCurdy, Temporary Chairman, In Keynote Speech, Summarizes Chief Plank of Party Platform In Three Words, "Abolish Economic Privilege"---1,000 Delegates Attend.

By GILLMAN PARKER

THIRD PARTY CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, July 10.—Summarizing the chief plank of the new third party platform in three words—"abolish economic privilege"—Allen McCurdy, as temporary chairman, today opened the party's first convention by a keynote speech in which he revealed the organization as standing for public ownership of basic resources and transportation systems of the country, advocating the forcing into use by taxation land held out to use for speculation to aid monopoly, and elimination of what he termed the control of big business over the political parties of the country.

Minus many of the political group units which it was hoped would come into the party organization at the last moment, the parent of the party—the Committee of Forty Eight—presented the new party, in convention assembled, with the avowed purpose of capturing for itself the presidency and vice presidency of the country next November, together with all national offices the country offers.

The issue presented by the new party, to the two older parties was one of "progressivism" as termed by the party itself, as against what it believes to be the "Old Guard" principles of the Republican parties.

"The abolishment" of economic privilege in connection with political platform of the country was announced as the main plank of the party's platform.

The convention was to have convened at 10 o'clock but it was an hour later before the delegates, numbering about 1,000 began filing into the flag-draped hall, to the playing by an orchestra of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

A survey of the delegates showed that at least one-fourth of their number were women. Until the convention was called to order the delegates gathered in groups about the various state banners, holding informal discussions of the party's affairs and boozing the candidates of their choice.

The name of Senator La Follette was probably the greatest in evidence, with that of Henry Ford a close second. Just before the convention was called to order it was learned that Senator La Follette at Madison, Wis., had made a statement in which he said that acceptance of the nomination if it were offered him, would depend on the assured permanency of the third party movement.

A boom for Henry Ford, appeared to gather strength hourly.

Frank P. Walsh is Contender

Indications from the talk of the delegates, were that the nomination, unless some unforeseen event occurs they will narrow down to a contest between Ford and Senator La Follette with Frank P. Walsh the third strongest contender. Concerning the latter much depends on the outcome of the Labor party as to the degree of strength Walsh will be able to muster in the convention. Indeed, if no agreement can be reached with the Labor party, it was stated by leaders of the latter, Walsh may decline to permit his name to come before the third party convention, running instead for the Labor party nomination.

The first demonstration from the assembled delegates came a few minutes after they had gathered in the hall when cheers were given for National Chairman J. A. Hopkins, as he stepped onto the speaker's platform.

A moment later, led by the Wisconsin delegation, the delegates rose and sang "On Wisconsin," the University of Wisconsin song, as a psychological boost for Senator La Follette. This was followed by a rendition of "The Bowery" whereupon the New York delegation arose and exercised its vocal powers.

The convention was opened informally at 11:36 with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, followed by "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," "Smiles," "The Long, Long Trail" which was whistled as an encore, "Illinois" and "Dixie."

At the time the convention opened every seat in the hall was filled, and scores of delegates were forced to remain standing at the rear of the hall.

The convention was formally called to order at 11:45. The invocation was given by the Rev. Nable S. Elderkin, of the Park Ridge Community church, Chicago.

Then National Chairman Hopkins delivered a brief address in which he declared that the convention was here today to strike the shackles of economic and industrial shackles apart and declared that "if the new party did not now seize the opportunity offered it, the chance would not arise again."

He then introduced Allan McCurdy, the temporary chairman, who launched into the "keynote" speech of the convention.

Soldier and Senator Cummins to Visit Ohio City Today.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Program of Notification, on July 22, is Agreed Upon.

By A. O. HAYWARD.

MARION, O., July 10.—General Leonard Wood will arrive in Marion today for a conference with Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican presidential nominee.

The general telephoned Senator Harding yesterday making the appointment. Coming probably on the same train with General Wood is Senator Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa.

These conferences are of more than usual importance, it is said at the Harding headquarters. It will be the first meeting of Senator Harding and General Wood since the Chicago convention, in which they were rivals for the nomination.

The conference has revived talk here of the possibility of General Wood for the war department portfolio in the Harding cabinet. This was broached by some of the general's friends while Senator Harding was still in Washington. Estimates of Senator Harding say that the nominee has not given the question of the personnel of his prospective cabinet any thought, and that his nomination was secured without the making of any position pledges.

It is expected that the conference with Senator Cummins will deal with matters of legislation, especially with reference to railroad and railroad labor. The Iowa senator is chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee which considered the recent railroad law. He favored at that time legislation preventing strikes by railroad employees that might tie up the transportation systems of the country. Because of his advocacy of this legislation, when failed, he was fought by railroad labor in his campaign for renomination to the senate.

The program of notification, on July 22, was agreed on yesterday at a conference held by Senator Harding with T. Coleman Dupont of Delaware, chairman of a special committee of the national committee on notification arrangements, and Harry M. Daugherty, a member of the executive committee of the national committee.

The notification is to take place in the large auditorium at Garfield park, Marion, at 2 p.m. The program follows:

Presiding officer—Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Singing—The Star Spangled Banner—Republican Glee club of Columbus.

Invocation—Rev. T. H. McAfee, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, Marion.

By ALBERT F. BAENZIGER.

DAYTON, O., July 10.—The dissatisfaction of the farmers over the platforms of both the big parties was personally brought to the attention of Governor James M. Cox, Democratic presidential nominee, by John A. McSparran, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange. Mr. McSparran stopped off in Dayton on his way home from the San Francisco convention to congratulate the governor on his nomination. The trouble started when the Sinn Feiners attacked a detachment of troops. Reinforcements of soldiers were rushed up and the Sinn Feiners were dispersed.

We want a real department of agriculture with a real farmer as its head," said the master. "There is no provision made in the resolutions of either party which would lead us to even hope this will be done. A wonderful opportunity was given to the Democrats in San Francisco to get the farmers' vote by giving us a plank insuring a practical department in Washington after the Chicago convention failed to do so. ## BAVARIAN GOVERNMENT WILL NOT DISARM ARMY

Dispatch from Munich Declares Action of German Delegates in Signing Disarmament Protocol Will Be Ignored.

By FRANK MASON.

BERLIN, July 10.—The Bavarian government has officially announced that it will not disarm its troops, notwithstanding the action of the German delegates in signing the allies' disarmament protocol at Spa, according to information from Munich today.

Bavarian ministers were quoted as saying that "their recent decision not to disarm the Einwohnerwehr and the Selcherheitswehr is unchangeable."

The acceptance of the allies' disarmament terms at Spa by the Germans has been under consideration at a series of conferences of ministers and national assembly leaders since noon yesterday.

"The allies are playing a dangerous game," said the Tageblatt in commenting on the result of the Spa conference. "If disarmament is successfully carried out the allies will have obligated themselves before the whole world to give strong industrial assistance to Germany."

If a catastrophe comes to Germany, the allies will be forever blighted in their roles as judges and directors of European affairs."

Expenditures of the Red Cross office here for the month of June reached $751.97, according to the monthly report of Miss Dorothy Weinseg, executive secretary, made public Saturday. Of this amount, $409.06 was expended in weekly allowances to families in destitute circumstances, grants for groceries and other essentials and loans.

The work of adjusting allotments, compensations, insurance, travel pay, liberty bonds and other service for ex-service men is rapidly being concluded, the monthly report of the Red Cross office reveals.

Paid workers of the home service section made or received 224 visits during the month.

With the immediate post-war financial difficulties of East Liverpool ex-service men practically cleared up, the East Liverpool Red Cross is concentrating its efforts upon caring for local men who were disabled in the service and in extending aid to civilian needy families.

Slayer Says He "Hated Idea of Having Child and Other Responsibilities.

CHICAGO, July 10.—In one of the most remarkable and cold-blooded crime confessions ever given the Chicago police, Carl Wanderer, former army lieutenant and a bridegroom of less than a year, admitted late Friday that he murdered his wife, together with the "poor fool he hired to be killed" on the night of June 21.

The true story of the double-slaying—the first version of which was that Mrs. Wanderer had been murdered by a robber who in turn was killed by Wanderer—was exacted from the former army officer after hours of continuous questioning. Exhausted and nearly frantic because of lack of sleep, Wanderer, after being trapped in a mass of lies finally lost his nerve and described his crime in detail.

He gave as his reason for the slaying that he wanted to be rid of his wife so that he could go back to the army. She was shortly to become a mother, he said, and he "hated the idea of having a child and other family responsibilities."

Tunnel Kiln Question is Also Considered At Potters' Convention.

AGGERMAKER PROBLEM

Several Resolutions Pertaining to Kiln Work are Adopted.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. A tentative agreement to replace the present scale which expires November 1, will be framed. A readjustment of the piece work scale granting sanitary workers a substantial increase in wages will be embodied in the new proposal.

With the tunnel kiln rapidly replacing the old-type kiln, an effort will be made at the seaboard meet to reach a way of determining a day's work in placing the new tunnel kiln. Resolutions adopted Friday dealt principally with the question of wages. One asked that the saggersmakers be relieved of the expense of carrying saggers to the kilns and this cost be borne by the manufacturers. Another resolution asked that saggersmakers' helpers be designated as apprentices and that the wages of such helpers for their first six months at the trade be paid by the manufacturers.

A satisfactory day rate for saggersmakers working on sagger-making machines, or after sagger-maker helping machines will be urged. This phase is something new in the trade and there is no definite scale.

The manufacturers will be asked to establish a different ratio for apprentices than some unforseen event occurs they will narrow down to a contest between Ford and Senator La Follette with Frank P. Walsh the third strongest contender.

Concerning the latter much depends on the outcome of the Labor party as to the degree of strength Walsh will be able to muster in the convention. Indeed, if no agreement can be reached with the Labor party, it was stated by leaders of the latter, Walsh may decline to permit his name to come before the third party convention, running instead for the Labor party nomination.

The first demonstration from the assembled delegates came a few minutes after they had gathered in the hall when cheers were given for National Chairman J. A. Hopkins, as he stepped onto the speaker's platform.

A moment later, led by the Wisconsin delegation, the delegates rose and sang "On Wisconsin," the University of Wisconsin song, as a psychological boost for Senator La Follette. This was followed by a rendition of "The Bowery" whereupon the New York delegation arose and exercised its vocal powers.

The convention was opened informally at 11:36 with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, followed by "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," "Smiles," "The Long, Long Trail," which was whistled as an encore, "Illinois" and "Dixie."

At the time the convention opened every seat in the hall was filled, and scores of delegates were forced to remain standing at the rear of the hall.

The convention was formally called to order at 11:45. The invocation was given by the Rev. Nable S. Elderkin, of the Park Ridge Community church, Chicago.

Then National Chairman Hopkins delivered a brief address in which he declared that the convention was here to strike the shackles of economic and industrial shackles apart and declared that "if the new party did not now seize the opportunity offered it, the chance would not arise again."

He then introduced Allan McCurdy, the temporary chairman, who launched into the "keynote" speech of the convention.

LAUNCH PRESIDENTIAL BOOMS FOR FORD AND SENATOR LA FOLLETTE

Allen McCurdy, Temporary Chairman, In Keynote Speech, Summarizes Chief Plank of Party Platform In Three Words, "Abolish Economic Privilege" --- 1,000 Delegates Attend.

By GILLMAN PARKER

THIRD PARTY CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, July 10.—Summarizing the chief plank of the new third party platform in three words—"abolish economic privilege"—Allen McCurdy, as temporary chairman, today opened the party's first convention by a keynote speech in which he revealed the organization as standing for public ownership of basic resources and transportation systems of the country, advocating the forcing into use by taxation of land held out to use for speculation to aid monopoly, and elimination of what he termed the control of big business over the political parties of the country.

Minus many of the political group units which it was hoped would come into the party organization at the last moment, the parent of the party—the Committee of Forty Eight—presented the new party, in convention assembled, with the avowed purpose of capturing for itself the presidency and vice presidency of the country next November, together with all national offices the country offers.

The issue presented by the new party, to the two older parties was one of "progressivism" as termed by the party itself, as against what it believes to be the "Old Guard" principles of the Republican parties.

"The abolition" of economic privilege in connection with political parties of the country was announced as the main plank of the party's platform.

The convention was to have convened at 10 o'clock but it was an hour later before the delegates, numbering about 1,000 began filing into the flag-draped hall, to the playing by an orchestra of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

A survey of the delegates showed that at least one-fourth of their number were women. Until the convention was called to order the delegates gathered in groups about the various state banners, holding informal discussions of the party's affairs and boozing the candidates of their choice.

The name of Senator La Follette was probably the greatest in evidence, with that of Henry Ford a close second. Just before the convention was called to order it was learned that Senator La Follette at Madison, Wis., had made a statement in which he said that acceptance of the nomination if it were offered him, would depend on the assured permanency of the third party movement.

A boom for Henry Ford, appeared to gather strength hourly.

Frank P. Walsh is Contender

Indications from the talk of the delegates, were that the nomination, unless some unforeseen event occurs they will narrow down to a contest between Ford and Senator La Follette with Frank P. Walsh the third strongest contender. Concerning the latter much depends on the outcome of the Labor party as to the degree of strength Walsh will be able to muster in the convention. Indeed, if no agreement can be reached with the Labor party, it was stated by leaders of the latter, Walsh may decline to permit his name to come before the third party convention, running instead for the Labor party nomination.

HARDING WILL CONFER WITH GEN. WOOD AT MARION HOME

Soldier and Senator Cummins to Visit Ohio City Today.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Program of Notification, on July 22, is Agreed Upon.

By A. O. HAYWARD.

MARION, O., July 10.—General Leonard Wood will arrive in Marion today for a conference with Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican presidential nominee.

The general telephoned Senator Harding yesterday making the appointment. Coming probably on the same train with General Wood is Senator Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa.

These conferences are of more than usual importance, it is said at the Harding headquarters. It will be the first meeting of Senator Harding and General Wood since the Chicago convention, in which they were rivals for the nomination.

The conference has revived talk here of the possibility of General Wood for the war department portfolio in the Harding cabinet. This matter was broached by some of the general's friends while Senator Harding was still in Washington. Intimates of Senator Harding say that the nominee has not given the question of the personnel of his prospective cabinet any thought, and that his nomination was secured without the making of any position pledges.

It is expected that the conference with Senator Cummins will deal with matters of legislation, especially with reference to railroad and railroad labor. The Iowa senator is chairman of the senate Interstate commerce committee which considered the recent railroad law. He favored at that time legislation preventing strikes by railroad employees that might tie up the transportation systems of the country. Because of his advocacy of this legislation, which failed, he was bought by railroad labor in his campaign for renomination to the senate.

The program of notification, on July 22, was agreed on yesterday at a conference held by Senator Harding with T. Coleman Dupont, of Delaware, chairman of a special committee of the national committee on notification arrangements, and Harry M. Daugherty, a member of the executive committee of the national committee.

The notification is to take place in the large auditorium at Garfield park, Marion, at 2 p.m. The program follows:

Presiding officer—Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Singing—The Star Spangled Banner—Republican Glee club of Columbus.

Invocation—Rev. T. H. McAfee, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, Marion.

Continuation—Senatof Henry Cabot

EVACUATION OF LEMBERG IS BEGUN BY POLES

LONDON, July 10.—A clash between Sinn Feiners and British soldiers took place in the streets of London today, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that city. The trouble started when the Sinn Feiners attacked a detachment of troops. Reinforcements of soldiers were rushed up and the Sinn Feiners were dispersed.

We want a real department of agriculture with a real farmer as its head," said the master. "There is no provision made in the resolutions of either party which would lead us to expect this will be done. A wonderful opportunity was given to the farmers in San Francisco to get the farmers' vote by giving us a plank insuring a practical department in Washington after the Chicago convention failed to do so. We are all disappointed.

DOUBLE MURDER OF BRIDE AND HIRED "HOLD-UP MAN" ADMITTED

Carl Wanderer Confesses Cold-Blooded Crime In Chicago.

TRAPPED IN MASS OF LIES

Slayer Says He "Hated Idea of Having Child and Other Responsibilities."

CHICAGO, July 10.—In one of the most remarkable and cold-blooded crime confessions ever given before the Chicago police, Carl Wanderer, former army lieutenant and a bridegroom of less than a year, admitted late Friday that he murdered his wife, together with the "poor fool he hired to be killed" on the night of June 21.

The true story of the double-slaying—the first version of which was that Mrs. Wanderer had been murdered by a robber who in turn was killed by Wanderer—was exacted from the former army officer after hours of continuous questioning. Exhausted and nearly frantic because of lack of sleep, Wanderer, after being trapped in a mass of lies finally lost his nerve and described his crime in detail.

He gave as his reason for the slaying that he wanted to be rid of his wife so that he could go back to the army. She was shortly to become a mother, he said, and he "hated the idea of having a child and other family responsibilities."

He declared that he finally decided that murder would be the best way out of his situation and so planned the crime with the double purpose of making it appear to be the result of an attempted robbery and so that he could pose as a hero for having killed his wife's supposed murderer.

POTTER RECEIVED COW FOR WAGES

William J. Owen, Former East Liverpool Man, Now in the Auto Tire Business, Tells of Early Days in Pottery Industry.

By M. K. ZIMMERMAN.

All old stagers in the pottery business know "Bill" Owen, or Mr. William J. Owen. Some call him Bill, but more often it's just plain "Bill."

When William left the pottery bench to take up the selling end his old-time friend declared the trade lost a good worker, but about his selling ability they had to be shown. Well, "Bill" showed 'em, made good in that line. He then passed up the game to get into the automobile business, where he once said, "there's more speed." Now he is more than making good in that line of business, as he is associated with his son in the tire business.

William Owen is a brother of George H. Owen of this city. "Bill" and George in the early days of their life were both engaged in the pottery trade, as were others of the family.

"Bill" never misses an opportunity to visit kinsfolk in the East Liverpool district, and spent the July holiday here. Be it remembered that "Bill" is a good story teller, and when asked the story of his life he came across handsomely. It's interesting, and will recall to the mind of many of the older residents of the upper Ohio Valley incidents of the early pottery life of the East Liverpool district.

"I was born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., September 12, 1864," begins Mr. Owen, "where my father and I. M. Hamersley operated a stoneware pottery. My father sold out and went to Bennington, Vt., where he built another stoneware pottery, and failed. He started for East Liverpool by way of Cleveland to Westerville, and finished his journey by steamboat, as there were no railroads to East Liverpool. That was in 1857. He secured a position with George S. Harker, making nappies and pie plates in yellow ware. There was no white ware made in East Liverpool at that time, except a small line of hard-fired hotel cups and saucers made by William Bloor.

"In that same year my father went to work for a Mr. Elvisean at Glascow, Pa. It was a one-kiln yellow ware plant. He worked three months for his wages. He then quit and went back to the Harker pottery, remaining there until his death in 1862, leaving my mother with five children to support.

"I was ten years old then, and secured a position at the Croxall pottery on Second street, carrying molds for 50 cents a week. After working two weeks Mr. Cartwright paid me with a whole cheese. I carried it home very well pleased. Mother asked me how I managed to get it home. I informed her that I carried it. She said that if I had put it on the ground it would have walked, as it was inhabited. This was in war times. Very little money was in circulation, and most all work was paid for in merchandise.

"My next job was at the Salt pottery, driving a horse for a clay maker. It was a soft job, riding on a pole and keeping the horse going. For that I received 75 cents per week. This did not last long, as the pottery sold out.

"In 1864 I went to work for James William Vodrey. My duties were sift- ing slip and doing any kind of work in the slip house or shed out in the open. When I was not busy I did odd work, such as mixing plaster for Mr. Bloor, or anything there was to be done.

"A statement issued today at the Harding headquarters says:

"Senator Harding believes the country would greatly profit through this participation by the vice president in the cabinet conferences of the administration. It not only would elevate the office of the vice president, but would give the president the sound advice and able assistance of his chief partner in handling the nation's affairs."

DOUBLE MURDER

"fork over that money!" An instant later spurts of flame blazed from Wanderer's two pistols, and his wife and the man he had hired for the false robbery fell dying to the vestibule floor. The latter was killed almost instantly. Then—

"Are you hurt, honey?" Wanderer called to his wife in the darkness. "Carl, I'm dying," was her reply.

There was another fusillade of bullets from Wanderer's pistols, and a moment later he was standing in the vestibule with two dead bodies and the smoking weapons in his hands. One of these—the one he obtained from his cousin, he threw beside the body of the supposed robber. Then he called for the police and acting the role of the man crushed by grief, described to them how the fatal "robbery" had occurred.

His story was believed, and no suspicion attached to him until the police, while tracing the ownership of the pistol found beside his victim's body, discovered that the weapon had been bought by Fred Wanderer. Then the detectives took Wanderer into custody and began questioning him. He told no less than sixteen different stories of the crime before the true one came out.

A two-faced dahlia, growing in the back yard of the W. C. Dickey home, Ravine street, is attracting much attention.

CONNELL WILL DO WORK ALONE

Candidate for Prosecutor, If Elected, Will Abolish Office of Deputy.

LISBON, July 10.—Attorney C. C. Connell of Lisbon, who is a candidate for the office of prosecuting attorney of Columbiana county, has injected the first real element of interest in the Republican primary campaign by his reply to a specific inquiry from George W. Armstrong, a prominent farmer and granger living a few miles west of Lisbon. In the announcement of his candidacy Connell had pledged himself that if nominated and elected he would administer his office economically. Going upon the theory that pre-election promises are easily made and do not usually mean much or specify anything definite, Mr. Armstrong wrote a letter of inquiry to Connell and asked him point blank what he contemplated when he promised economies.

Replying to the letter from Armstrong, candidate Connell stated that while he could not go into every detail, one thing he would say is that he would abolish the position of assistant prosecutor in the event that he secured the office. He recited the fact that such men as Judge R. W. Taylor, Judge P. M. Smith and Attorneys C. S. Speaker, Jason H. Brookes and M. J. McGarry conducted the office of prosecutor without an assistant, and knew he could do likewise and save the taxpayers the yearly salary. He also promised a general policy of economy.

Mr. Armstrong is a prominent granger, and the grange has insisted from time to time upon greater economies and efficiency in the conduct of county affairs. A copy of his letter and the reply from Mr. Connell appears in the Farm and Dairy, published at Salem, in its issue of July 9, together with a favorable editorial comment by Editor R. B. Thompson.

CHICAGO RECALLS CANDIDATE'S WIFE AS CHARMING GIRL

Mrs. James M. Cox.

Chicago society has not forgotten the beauty and charm of Mrs. James M. Cox from the days when as a child she romped about the garden paths of Cherry farm and tore along the country roads near Elmhurst, one of Chicago's exclusive suburbs, on her black pony. Chicago folks remember her, too, as a golf enthusiast and tennis champion, "an all around girl Margaretta," they said.

We will appreciate your courtesy if you will announce this letter from your pulpit that as many people as possible may receive this information.

COX TO ANSWER McCURDY COUNT

Democratic Nominee is Mildly Interested In the Third Party Charge.

DAYTON, O., July 10.—Governor James M. Cox, Democratic presidential nominee, failed to become but mildly interested in the keynote speech of Allan McCurdy, temporary chairman of the third party made in their convention at Chicago today. The classification of the Democratic party as one of the two wings of Wall street brought forth a smile but no statement. He did indicate a reply to every charge would be made later on.

Word was finally received from his running mate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, at Glenwood Springs, Colo., announcing that he would leave St. Louis Sunday night arriving in Columbus Monday at noon. It is now believed the celebration planned by the Columbus Association of Commerce for Monday in honor of the governor will be delayed an hour so that Mr. Roosevelt can be included.

Telegrams from Tom Watson, of Georgia; Secretary of the Treasury Houston, Governor Bamberger of Utah; David R. Francis and a letter from Orville Wright, were among the communications received today.

The committee on notification arrangements has been called by General Dupont to meet at the Deshler hotel, Columbus, O., at 10 a.m. Wednesday, July 21; and a meeting of the Republican national executive committee will be held at the same place and hotel that afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Harry M. Daugherty will entertain the members and officers of these committees and of the Republican national committee at dinner, on July 21, at the Athletic club, Columbus, O.

A special train on the Hocking Valley railroad will bring all the committees from Columbus to Marion for the notification ceremonies for Monday in honor of the governor will be brought under control. Five alarms were turned in and all available fire apparatus in that section was called out together with fire boats, before the conflagration could be checked.

Among Senator Harding's visitors yesterday were Henry L. Stoddard of New York and former Gov. J. Frank Hanly of Indiana. Stoddard reported to the senator that all the Progressives, among whom he is a leader, would support the Republican ticket. Hanly conferred with the senator on the question of prohibition enforcement by a Republican administration. In 1916 Hanly was the prohibition presidential candidate and received nearly 500,000 votes. He wants an out-and-out declaration favoring strict enforcement of the Volstead law making the prohibition amendment effective, and does not approve the placing of a prohibition ticket in the field by the prohibition convention which meets July 21 at Lincoln, Neb. "I did not ask the senator for any commitment, and he made none," said Hanly after the conference. "I hope to be able to support the Republican ticket and to give it all the assistance I can," he concluded.

L. E. Thomas and G. W. Quick of Falls Church, Va., driving automobiles to Washington, D. C., stopped in front of the Harding headquarters early yesterday morning to ask their way.

Senator Harding stood alone in front of the building. The senator drew forth a map of a route that was favorable to automobile driving, and carefully explained how they could follow it easily. He was recognized by the men. One of them, stating that he had been a Democrat, declared he would vote this fall for the senator.

A delegation of Mansfield, O., citizens, headed by E. B. Cappellar, of the Mansfield News, invited Senator Harding to use the Mansfield golf course when and as often as he could get away from his duties. The senator accepted the invitation, but said he could not avail himself of it before his acceptance of the nomination on July 22.

POTTER RECEIVED COW FOR WAGES

William J. Owen, Former East Liverpool Man, Now in the Auto Tire Business, Tells of Early Days In Pottery Industry.

By M. K. ZIMERMAN.

All old stagers in the pottery business know "Bill" Owen, or Mr. William J. Owen. Some call him William, but more often it's just plain "Bill."

When William left the pottery bench to take up the selling end his old-time friend declared the trade lost a good worker, but about his selling ability they had to be shown. Well, "Bill" showed 'em, made good in that line. He then passed up the game to get into the automobile business, where he once said, "there's more speed." Now he is more than making good in that line of business, as he is associated with his son in the tire business.

William Owen is a brother of George H. Owen of this city. "Bill" and George in the early days of their life were both engaged in the pottery trade, as were others of the family.

"Bill" never misses an opportunity to visit kinsfolk in the East Liverpool district, and spent the July holiday here. Be it remembered that "Bill" is a good story teller, and when asked the story of his life he came across handsomely. It's interesting, and will recall to the mind of many of the older residents of the upper Ohio Valley incidents of the early pottery life of the East Liverpool district.

"I was born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., September 12, 1864," begins Mr. Owen, "where my father and a Mr. Hamersley operated a stoneware pottery. My father sold out and went to Bennington, Vt., where he built another stoneware pottery, and failed.

He started for East Liverpool, by way of Cleveland to Wellsville, and finished his journey by steamboat, as there were no railroads to East Liverpool. That was in 1857. He secured a position with George S. Harker, making nappies and pie plates in yellow ware. There was no white ware made in East Liverpool at that time, except a small line of hard-dried hotel cups and saucers made by William Bloor.

"In that same year my father went to work for a Mr. Elveisan at Glassco, Pa. It was a one-kiln yellow ware plant. He worked three months for his wages. He then quit and went back to the Harker pottery, remaining there until his death in 1862, leaving my mother with five children to support.

"I was ten years old then, and secured a position at the Croxall pottery on Second street, carrying molds for 50 cents a week. After working two weeks Mr. Cartwright paid me with a whole cheese. I carried it home very well pleased. Mother asked me how I managed to get it home. I informed her that I carried it. She said that if I had put it on the ground it would have walked, as it was inhabited. This was in war times. Very little money was in circulation, and most all work was paid for in merchandise.

"My next job was at the Salt pottery, driving a horse for a clay maker. It was a soft job, riding on a pole and keeping the horse going. For that I received 75 cents per week. This did not last long, as the pottery sold out.

"In 1864 I went to work for James William Vodrey. My duties were shifting slip and doing any kind of work in the slip house or shed out in the open. When I was not busy I did odd work, such as mixing plaster for Mr. Bullock, or anything there was to be done.

A statement issued today at the Hardings' headquarters says:

"Senator Harding believes the country would greatly profit through this participation by the vice president in the cabinet conferences of the administration. It not only would elevate the office of the vice president, but would give the president the sound advice and able assistance of his chief affairs."

DOUBLE MURDER

"About this time the Blakeley, Santa Anna, Webster and Burgess plants went out of business, and the Harpers, Brunt, Baggott, Croxall, Cartwright, Vodrey, West & Hardwick, Union, Annex, Fouts, Foster Rowley, John Goodwin, Morley & Goodwin, C. C. Thompson and Manley & Cartwright plants were all manufacturing Rockingham and yellow ware.

"I left the Knowles & Harvey pottery and went with Mr. Vickis to learn to make Parian ware at the West & Hardwick pottery. Mr. Vickis was taken sick and died, and I went with Manley & Cartwright to learn the pressing trade, working with them for eight years, when I went to Rock Island to work for Captain Haverstick, who had a small art pottery there. This was in 1874. I left Rock Island and went to Cincinnati, working for George Scott & Son, manufacturing white granite, Rockingham and yellow ware. Then I returned to Liverpool to my old position with Manley & Cartwright.

"My next move was to the East Palestine Pottery company in 1883. Robert Ashbaugh, William Worth, Tonas & Zeb. Heisey, Mr. Harrison, George Sebring and myself composed the company. George Sebring did not have the money to spare, and I loaned him the amount necessary to join us. We ran the factory for 12 months, lost $260 each and George Sebring got out of the company. It was reorganized a few years and then burned down.

"I then went to Zanesville to manage the plant of the J. B. Owens' pottery company. From there I went to the Radford Pottery company, Clark-

CONNELL WILL DO WORK ALONE

Candidate for Prosecutor, If Elected, Will Abolish Office of Deputy.

LISBON, July 19.—Attorney C. C. Connell of Lisbon, who is a candidate for the office of prosecuting attorney of Columbiana county, has injected the first real element of interest in the Republican primary campaign by his reply to a specific inquiry from George W. Armstrong, a prominent farmer and granger living a few miles west of Lisbon. In the announcement of his candidacy Connell had pledged himself that if nominated and elected he would administer his office economically. Going upon the theory that pre-election promises are easily made and do not usually mean much or specify anything definite, Mr. Armstrong wrote a letter of inquiry to Connell and asked him point blank what he contemplated when he promised economies.

Replying to the letter from Armstrong, candidate Connell stated that while he could not go into every detail, one thing he would say, that he would abolish the position of assistant prosecutor in the event that he secured the office. He recited the fact that such men as Judge R. W. Taylor, Judge P. M. Smith and Attorneys C. S. Speaker, Jason H. Brookes and J. M. McGarry conducted the office of prosecutor without an assistant, and he knew he could do likewise and save the taxpayers the yearly salary. He also promised a general policy of economy.

The boxing fans view Carpenter's departure with varied emotions.

That Carpenter is a boxer of parts is generally admitted byistic critics. His showing in exhibitions through the country made a favorable impression and though many ring sharps have begun to believe that he isn't eager to go through with the Dempsey match, he has, nevertheless, made hundreds of friends in America.

His explanation of the peculiar binding nature of his contract with Charles Cochrane has for the time being silenced a majority of his critics and if he lives up to his promise to return here in the fall to go through with the match with Battling Levinsky, scheduled for October 10, but whether or not they posted a forfeit to guarantee appearance could not be learned.

That Carpenter is a boxer of parts is generally admitted byistic critics. His showing in exhibitions through the country made a favorable impression and though many ring sharps have begun to believe that he isn't eager to go through with the Dempsey match, he has, nevertheless, made hundreds of friends in America.

His explanation of the peculiar binding nature of his contract with Charles Cochrane has for the time being silenced a majority of his critics and if he lives up to his promise to return here in the fall to go through with the match with Battling Levinsky, scheduled for October 10, but whether or not they posted a forfeit to guarantee appearance could not be learned.

BETTING ODDS ON PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Betting odds in New York are regarded as reflecting pretty much the sentiment of the country on most important questions. Wall street is considered to be in a position to gauge which way the wind is blowing in political battles. Evidence of this has been furnished in practically every important fight for public office. And if wagers are an indication of the trend of public opinion this year, chances for the success of the Republican ticket in the national election are considered especially bright.

A dispatch from New York last night reported a bet of $25,000 to $10,000 that Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee, would be the next president of the United States. The wager was made by two prominent stock exchange houses. This is on the basis of 2½ to 1. And despite these odds, little Democratic money was reported in sight.

Not only on the national result are Wall street brokers willing to risk their money on the Republican presidential candidates. They are offering bets that Harding will not only be the winner in the electoral college, but also that he will carry the three eastern states, New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

Wall street seldom misses its guesses. Prior to and during the Republican national convention, Harding was quoted as the favorite in the betting for the nomination. During the San Francisco conclave, New York brokers made large wagers at long odds that Governor James M. Cox would be Democracy's choice.

Wagers offered in New York are based upon country-wide reports, which indicate a great wave of sentiment for the Harding-Coolidge ticket. The Republican standard bearers, judging from all signs, will be given a large plurality on November 2.

ARMENIAN COURAGE.

Miss Elizabeth Kelly, an American woman who has been engaged in relief work in Armenia, and recently returned to this country, offers an account of Armenian conduct during the Turkish massacres that will give many Americans a new idea of the Armenians.

In the province of Aintab, where Miss Kelly was stationed, she says the people fought the Turks with heroic desperation, against odds such as few peoples have ever had to meet. The Armenians were unarmed to begin with—the Turks had seen to that. When arms and ammunition sent from France failed to arrive, they made weapons from anything that came to hand. Cannon were improvised from the mangle tubes of American laundry machinery, and cannon balls that had been preserved in museums and on monuments as relics of the old Crusades were fired in them. When no guns or pistols could be found or made, she says, they fashioned spears after the fashion of their fathers in biblical times, and went forth with them to meet the enemy. Women and men alike took part in the defense.

Americans have often been heard to remark that they would feel more like helping the Armenians if the latter showed more disposition to help themselves. Apparently there is no such lack of courage among them as some accounts of Turkish massacres have seemed to suggest. When they have seemed to submit weakly to slaughter and outrage, it was because an overwhelmingly superior force had deprived them of the only weapons by which effective resistance was possible.

ALLIES MEAN TO PAY.

Washington officials have done a service to this country, as well as to our late allies, in giving out the statement that our government has never been approached with any proposal for the slightest modification in the terms or conditions of payment of the loans made during the war.

These loans, made in the form of credit for war materials, amounted to about $10,000,000,000 during the war. As a result of the continuing favorable balance of trade, Europe now owes to the United States altogether about $12,000,000,000 but much of this is owed to citizens and firms individually. The $10,000,000 is owed to the United States government.

There have been many plans offered, from time to time, for the disposition of that debt, most of them intended to ease the burden of the Allies. It has been suggested that the entire war debt of the allied nations, including the United States, should be pooled—which would have given this country a much bigger obligation than it acquired on its own responsibility. It has even been suggested abroad that the United States being rich, should cancel the big war mortgage it holds against the Allies.

All these proposals, it is explained, have come from private individuals in England, France and elsewhere, who spoke only for themselves. Not one of the governments to which the United States advanced cash or credit has ever in any way asked for cancellation of the debt or modification of the terms of payment originally agreed on.

A WOMAN IN BUSINESS.

The woman in business is usually referred to as a "problem," but in most cases she is rather a settler of problems, civic and personal.

One woman whose home was located near the center of a small town noticed tourists looking in vain for a comfortable place to park. She is doing a good business now by allowing them to park around the drive in her big, shady yard. Since the town is short of good eating places, she serves simple refreshments, home-made bread and butter, cookies, lemonade and hot coffee or tea.

Her guests come, stay an hour and are gone, but the fame of her yard, her food and her kindness has been carried far and wide. She has put her town on the map in her quiet way, and done the world a good turn, even as she wrested her living from it.

NEW YORK LETTER

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 10.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Lay late, greatly vexed in mind about this and that. Walked towards the river and had a morning draught at the public fountain and fell in with Gene Buck who is writing a play for Mr. Whipple and I promised to give him a dog, the finest gift one man can bestow upon a friend.

At the tram station I met my wife, poor wretch, and to the Red Lion Inn for breakfast, a filling repast of coffee cake, bravely sugared and hen's eggs cooked. Hither came Carl Randall, the dancer, a lusty young man. Home and began a frolic with my beast and he tore my sleeve badly.

A strange atmospheric change this day frightened us. In a hired benzine wagon we drove through the town and near the Savoy the heat became oppressive so that we did gasp and the driver paled and then a clap of thunder and a high wind and hell fell as big as bird's eggs. I feared the world's end and then seemed sorry afterward it was not so.

In the evening to a public place for dinner, stopping at Mr. ...'s and he forced a gin cocktail upon us and all mighty merry and later to a roof place where many came to dance and on the floor were Mistress Billie Burke, Leontine Ulrich, Fay Bainter and Constance Talmadge. Home very late and so to bed.

There is a magazine editor who has a slight impediment when he tries to pronounce certain words. He is not at all sensitive about it and tells many jokes upon himself.

The other evening he went down to Gattini's. It is an Italian restaurant famed for its spaghetti. The editor loves to have a meal now and then solely on spaghetti.

When the waiter came he asked the editor what he would have. He tried to say spaghetti. But instead he said: "Sp—sp—sp—sp."

And then the cat jumped up in his lap.

A wave of frivolity has engulfed New York. Nobody seems to understand. Every man and woman has nearly each night taken for weeks ahead. The cafes are doing a whooping business. Summer shows are packed. The road houses are bursting with merriment. The society papers pandering to scandal are filled with accounts of gay parties that might even put pre-war Paris to shame.

The cost of flying is decreasing. I dropped into The Aero, Ltd. offices on Fifth avenue the other day. C. A. Reinhardt is the passenger agent. He is an old newspaperman and started Broadway Brevities—the publication which circulates monthly on Broadway. Travel by air is becoming more and more for business purposes and not for novel amusement. As many as 50 flights have been made in a day to such places as Boston, Albany, Newport, Atlantic City and Philadelphia. Most of the flying is over water which minimizes the danger. It is said that in a few months short trips will be in the reach of everyone.

The Elevator Look! People may be chatting pleasantly, smiling or even frowning but the instant they step on elevators they get the elevator look. It is a strained expression. A look as though one expected something to happen. It is intensified on express elevators that shoot up 49 and 50 floors. Intelligent conversation is almost impossible on express elevators.

BETTING ODDS ON PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Betting odds in New York are regarded as reflecting pretty much the sentiment of the country on most important questions. Wall street is considered to be in a position to gauge which way the wind is blowing in political battles. Evidence of this has been furnished in practically every important fight for public office. And if wagers are an indication of the trend of public opinion this year, chances for the success of the Republican ticket in the national election are considered especially bright.

A dispatch from New York last night reported a bet of $25,000 to $10,000 that Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee, would be the next president of the United States. The wager was made by two prominent stock exchange houses. This is on the basis of 2½ to 1. And despite these odds, little Democratic money was reported in sight.

Not only on the national result are Wall street brokers willing to risk their money on the Republican presidential candidates. They are offering bets that Harding will not only be the winner in the electoral college, but also that he will carry the three eastern states, New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

Wall street seldom misses its guesses. Prior to and during the Republican national convention, Harding was quoted as the favorite in the betting for the nomination. During the San Francisco conclave, New York brokers made large wagers at long odds that Governor James M. Cox would be Democracy's choice.

Wagers offered in New York are based upon country-wide reports, which indicate a great wave of sentiment for the Harding-Coolidge ticket. The Republican standard bearers, judging from all signs, will be given a large plurality on November 2.

ARMENIAN COURAGE.

Miss Elizabeth Kelly, an American woman who has been engaged in relief work in Armenia, and recently returned to this country, offers an account of Armenian conduct during the Turkish massacres that will give many Americans a new idea of the Armenians.

In the province of Aintab, where Miss Kelly was stationed, she says the people fought the Turks with heroic desperation, against odds such as few peoples have ever had to meet. The Armenians were unarmed to begin with—the Turks had seen to that. When arms and ammunition sent from France failed to arrive, they made weapons from anything that came to hand. Cannon were improvised from the mangle tubes of American laundry machinery, and cannon balls that had been preserved in museums and on monuments as relics of the old Crusades were fired in them. When no guns or pistols could be found or made, she says, they fashioned spears after the fashion of their fathers in biblical times, and went forth with them to meet the enemy. Women and men alike took part in the defense.

Americans have often been heard to remark that they would feel more like helping the Armenians if the latter showed more disposition to help themselves. Apparently there is no such lack of courage among them as some accounts of Turkish massacres have seemed to suggest. When they have seemed to submit weakly to slaughter and outrage, it was because an overwhelming superior force had deprived them of the only weapons by which effective resistance was possible.

ALLIES MEAN TO PAY.

Washington officials have done a service to this country, as well as to our late allies, in giving out the statement that our government has never been approached with any proposal for the slightest modification in the terms or conditions of payment of the loans made during the war.

These loans, made in the form of credit for war materials, amounted to about $10,000,000,000 during the war. As a result of the continuing favorable balance of trade, Europe now owes to the United States altogether about $12,000,000,000 but much of this is owed to citizens and firms individually. The $10,000,000,000 is owed to the United States government.

There have been many plans offered, from time to time, for the disposition of that debt, most of them intended to ease the burden of the Allies. It has been suggested that the entire war debt of the allied nations, including the United States, should be pooled—which would have given this country a much bigger obligation than it acquired on its own responsibility. It has even been suggested abroad that the United States being rich, should cancel the big war mortgage it holds against the Allies.

All these proposals, it is explained, have come from private individuals in England, France and elsewhere, who spoke only for themselves. Not one of the governments to which the United States advanced cash or credit has ever in any way asked for cancellation of the debt or modification of the terms of payment originally agreed on.

A WOMAN IN BUSINESS.

The woman in business is usually referred to as a "problem," but in most cases she is rather a settler of problems, civic and personal.

One woman whose home was located near the center of a small town noticed tourists looking in vain for a comfortable place to park. She is doing a good business now by allowing them to park around the drive in her big, shady yard. Since the town is short of good eating places, she serves simple refreshments, home-made bread and butter, cookies, lemonade and hot coffee or tea.

Her guests come, stay an hour and are gone, but the fame of her yard, her food and her kindness has been carried far and wide. She has put her town on the map in her quiet way, and done the world a good turn, even as she wrested her living from it.

NEW YORK LETTER

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 10.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys Lay late, greatly vexed in mind about this and that. Walked towards the river and had a morning draught at the public fountain and fell in with Gene Buck who is writing a play for Mr. Wharfleld and I promised to give him a dog, the finest gift one man can bestow upon a friend.

At the tram station I met my wife, poor wretch, and to the Red Lion inn for breakfast, a filling repast of coffee cake bravely sugared and hen's eggs cooked. Hither came Carl Randall, the dancer, a lusty young man. Home and began a frolic with my beast and he tore my sleeve, badly.

A strange atmospheric change this day frightened us. In a hired benzine wagon we drove through the town and near the Savoy the heat became oppressive so that we did gasp and the driver paled and then a clap of thunder and a high wind and hail fell as big as bird's eggs. I feared the world's end and then seemed sorry afterward it was not so.

In the evening to a public place for dinner, stopping at Mr. Zion's and he forced a gin cocktail upon us and all mighty merry and later to a roof place where many came to dance and on the floor were Mistress Billie Burke, Leontine Ulrich, Fay Bainter and Constance Talmadge. Home very late and so to bed.

There is a magazine editor who has a slight impediment when he tries to pronounce certain words. He is not at all sensitive about it and tells many jokes upon himself.

The other evening he went down to Gaffett's. It is an Italian restaurant famed for its spaghetti. The editor loves to have a meal now and then solely on spaghetti.

When the waiter came he asked the editor what he would have. He tried to say spaghetti. But instead he said: "Sp-sp-sp-sp."

And then the cafe cat jumped up in his lap.

A wave of frivolity has engulfed New York. Nobody seems to understand. Every man and woman has nearly each night taken for weeks ahead. The cafes are doing a whooping business. Summer shows are packed. The road houses are bursting with merriment. The society papers pandering to scandal are filled with accounts of gay parties that might even put pre-war Paris to shame.

The cost of flying is decreasing. I dropped into The Aero, Ltd. offices on Fifth avenue the other day. C. A. Reinhardt is the passenger agent. He is an old newspaperman and started Broadway Brevities—the publication which circulates monthly on Broadway. Travel by air is becoming more and more for business purposes and not for novel amusement. As many as 50 flights have been made in a day to such places as Boston, Albany, Newark, Atlantic City and Philadelphia. Most of the flying is over water which minimizes the danger. It is said that in a few months short trips will be in the reach of every purse.

The Elevator Look! People may be chatting pleasantly, smiling or even frowning but the instant they step on elevators they get the elevator look. It is a strained expression. A look as though one expected something to happen. It is intensified on express elevators that shoot up 49 and 50 floors. Intelligent conversation is almost impossible on express elevators.

There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. are taking kindly to Simco Salve and C. T. Larkins and T. R. Ashbaugh are reporting pleased customers.

SIM-CO SALVE is immediately active in reducing the soreness of the tender, sensitive lungs of infants or the lungs of the sturdy parent alike, thereby reducing the fever.

The magic wonder is that relief comes so quickly. It frees clogged nostrils and inflamed air passages in the head, which inflammation sometimes leads to catarrh and impaired hearing.

SIM-CO SALVE is a modern, efficient ointment, active in killing germs and therefore gets prompt results when used for eczema and other skin troubles; distressing, tortured skin that burns like fire is soothed immediately. Those common, continued ear healings and nose sores are checked by inserting small quantities of SIM-CO SALVE.

It is perfectly pliable and is a very good modern liniment for all liniment needs.

When you buy SIM-CO SALVE what you pay for is satisfaction and that is what we guarantee to you.

Better be prepared at once; go to C. T. Larkins or T. R. Ashbaugh's drug store today and get a jar. Price 20c, 60c, and $1.00 per jar. If your druggist does not keep it; send us 35c and the parcel post will bring it to your door by return mail. Wm. M. Simpson Drug Co., Wholesale Druggists, Pittsburgh Station, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Amanda is continually getting into difficulties, both in and out of the laundry, and when Lavender, the horse which pulls the battered delivery wagon, is about to be sold for glue she rushes to his aid and takes the horse to her own humble little room, three flights of stairs up in the tenement.

How she and the horse are ejected by the other exasperated tenants is one of the most amusing scenes of the story.

Finally a bank holiday comes along and all of the girls in the laundry are going to Hampstead Heath for a picnic, but Amanda says that she is waiting for "Orace Greensmith. Just at this moment Horace appears for his shirt. He knows nothing about the romance woven about him by the imagination of Amanda and in fact, has seen her but once before in his life and then only casually when he came to deposit his shirt.

How Amanda bluffs through the situation and saves her face before the spell bound girls, must naturally be seen to be appreciated and enjoyed.

GREATEST OF PICKFORD PICTURES AT THE AMERICAN NEXT WEEK

Mary Pickford, who has delighted so many millions as the glad girl in "Pollyanna," will be seen at the American theater four days starting Monday in her latest United Artists Corporation production, "Suds," in a role said to be entirely different from anything in which she has heretofore appeared.

The story was adapted from the stage play, "Op o' Me Thumb," in which Maude Adams appeared with such great success in Charles Frohman's Empire Theater in New York.

How she and the horse are ejected by the other exasperated tenants is one of the most amusing scenes of the story.

Finally a bank holiday comes along and all of the girls in the laundry are going to Hampstead Heath for a picnic, but Amanda says that she is waiting for "Orace Greensmith. ## Prices Cannot Drop Now

The reason for a marked drop in prices will be the reason for your inability to buy when that drop comes.

Prices are where they are because of a world shortage — shortage of raw material, shortage of labor. These two factors mean shortage of finished product. Shortage of finished product together with existing shipping facilities which now and for the past few years have been far from meeting the demand give the reason for conditions which prevail today.

Everywhere manufacturing industries are bidding for labor; dealers are prodding the manufacturers for shipments, while the consumers are demanding better and more luxurious living conditions.

You recall conditions as they existed a few years ago. There was not a shortage of raw material, of labor, of finished product nor of shipping facilities. Stock rooms of manufacturers and retailers were piled to the roof with merchandise, and employees were putting in about 1-3 to 1-2 time.

The daily papers told of workmen idle. Prices were then less than  $\frac{1}{2}$  of what they are now and you will recall that the comforts and luxuries were not had then, as they are now.

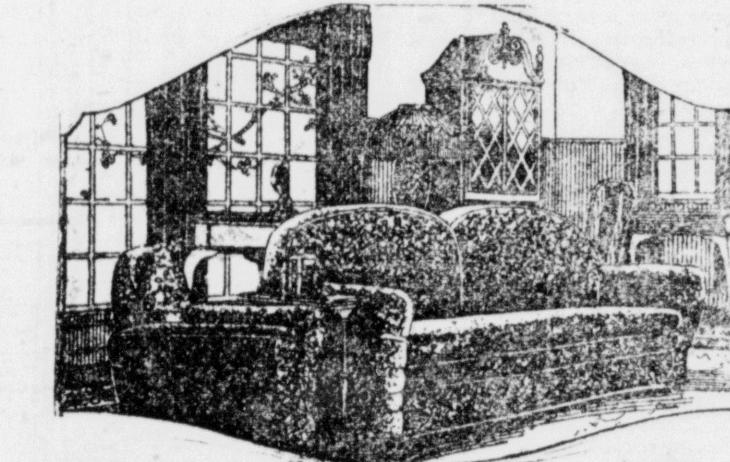

Candidly, could times be better than they are at the present time? Let us not consider too seriously the impossible — high wages — plenty of work — and low priced commodities.

By putting on a Summer Sale we are only following a practice established years ago, and in our judgment it is as reasonable and proper now as in the past.

We assure you with earnest conviction that now is a good time to buy at the reduced prices being offered by legitimate sales whether here or elsewhere.

MURDER MYSTERY
WITNESS FOUND

Hobart Grimm, Missing for Three Months, Returns to Brooke County—Posts Bond for Appearance In Court.

Hobart Grimm, aged 23, missing three months and wanted as a witness in the murder case of Stephen Galchek, 35, Pittsburg floral decorator, surrendered to Brooke county authorities yesterday. He gave $1,000 bond for his appearance as a witness against Mike Ondrinc, of Pittsburg, and his wife, known as Mme. Stanley, former Follansbee clairvoyant, who are held in Brooke county on first degree murder charges.

Grimm, who is better known as "Pittsburg," was apprehended by Sheriff John Litton and Deputy Stevens in Main street, Weisburg. Grimm told the officers how he had come back to defend himself from a cleverly concocted scheme which he had learned Mike Ondrinc and Madame Stanley were "framing" against him in which they would attempt to show that he had murdered Galchek.

He stated that he had nothing to do with the crime and could bring witnesses before the court showing that he left Follansbee on February 1, going to Belaire, where he visited relatives for three days and that he was groundhog hunting with two cousins on February 2, the day of the murder.

"Do you think I would come back if I killed the man?" Grimm asked the officers. "No and you never would have got me, only I wanted to come back and clear my name," he said, later telling how he had spent forty-nine months in Moundsville penitentiary, "and I would rather die and go to hell than go back to that place," he continued.

According to his own story Grimm left Follansbee and went directly to Cleveland where he shipped out on a freighter on the Great Lakes. On his first trip the boat stopped at Lorain, Ohio, and there he interviewed Madame Stanley who had established headquarters as a fortune teller and where she was later arrested. After his visit there he stayed continually at his work on the lakes, shipping to Duluth, Minn., an other western points but when he learned that he was to be the victim of the Ondrinc's scheme, he started for home he said.

The Ondrincs are charged with murdering Galchek, after he had entered suit against the Madame for the recovery of money loaned her at different times, amounting to hun-

DISCOVER MOONSHINE STILL IN MOUNTAINS

What was declared to be the biggest moonshine whisky producer in the state, running day and night shifts of operators and turning out 20 gallons of liquor every 24 hours, has been discovered in the mountains of Raleigh county.

The still, for which 12 secret locations had been used in succession on the same farm, was of 50-gallon capacity and was constructed of galvanized washtubs, galvanized iron pipes and a copper coil. It was seized by officers of the state prohibition department, including James Cain, Lloyd Adkins and W. R. Reed and Howard C. Smith, detective, and taken to Charleston.

This still, it was said by the officers, has been responsible for the death of at least two men, one in a fight over it and the other of a man who died as the result of drinking the liquor distilled in it. The operators of the still were not captured, though their identity is said to be known by the officers, who expect to arrest them later. Ted Jarrell, an aged man, who is alleged to have been employed by the operators of the still as a lookout to give warning of the approach of officers, was arrested and taken to Charleston.

To Install Elders.

Formal installation of two newly-elected elders will take place in connection with the regular morning services at the First United Presbyterian church. It was announced Saturday. The new elders are George C. Holliday and Robert L. Fouts.

Red Cross Seeks Donations.

Officials of the Red Cross chapter of Weirton have issued a call for donations to be used in furnishing their new home, located near the tin mill offices.

With the completion of the home, funds of the organization for this purpose were exhausted, leaving nothing with which to buy furnishings.

CASH REGISTER IN RESTAURANT RIFLED

Another petty theft was added to the series of robberies perpetrated in Chester within the last few weeks, when two unidentified men rifled the cash register in the restaurant operated by Mrs. R. C. Cuppy in Carolina avenue late Friday afternoon. A sum of money estimated at about six dollars was taken.

Driving up to the front of the restaurant in an automobile at a time when the restaurant was without patrons, two men entered the store and engaged Mrs. Cuppy in conversation. One of the men told the proprietress that he noticed smoke issuing from an upstairs window. When the woman went to investigate the two emptied the cash register.

Police were notified of the theft but have been unable to apprehend the culprits. The theft is the sixth of a similar nature to be successfully perpetrated here recently.

Rogers-Minor Wedding.

Miss Alethea May Rogers and John J. Minor, well known young couple of this city, were quietly united in marriage in the parsonage of the First Presbyterian church June 30, according to announcement Saturday.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hugh M. Hanna, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The bride wore a white organdy gown and carried a corsage bouquet of roses. A reception was tendered the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony.

Mrs. Minor is a graduate of the Chester high school with the class of 1917. Prior to her marriage she was an instructor in the Grant district schools. Mr. Minor is employed at the Chester works of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company. They will reside here after an eastern wedding trip.

Each of these bodies will hold a convention in Chicago at the same time, July 10, 11, 12 and 13. Among the men prominently mentioned

Hearst, newspaper publisher, who recently formed the American Constitutional party; Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, and Frank P. Walsh of Missouri, a prominent figure in the "Committee of 48."

LIGHTNING DAMAGES
MERRY-GO-ROUND ROOF

A force of workmen, employed by the Rock Springs Park company, today began repairing the roof of the merry-go-round building at the park, which was damaged by a bolt of lightning Thursday night.

The damage, which occurred during the heavy rain storm which swept the valley, was witnessed by nearly two dozen people, mostly picnickers who were spending the afternoon and evening taking advantage of the shelter afforded by the merry-go-round building.

Pastors of three Presbyterian churches participated in the service which began at 8 o'clock. Rev. H. M. Hosack of Newell delivered the charge to the congregation and Rev. J. W. Dunbar of Old Concord, Pa., and a former local pastor, the charge to the new pastor. Rev. Homer G. McMillan of Holliday's Cove, gave the installation address.

The trend of feminine thought in this direction finds definite expression in the increasingly large number of Paige Light Sixes sold to women.

There can be no doubt that the smart five-passenger Paige Glenbrook admirably meets the requirements of the feminine motorist. It is a car of mechanical excellence, a car of luxurious comfort and, quite as important, a car noted for its ease of control.

Of course, you can better judge this Paige model when you have seen it and enjoyed a trial ride. All we ask is the privilege of making a single demonstration.

During her absence the murder crime developed and the body of Galchek was taken from the river at Yorkville with wrists in handcuffs. The handcuffs, it has developed belonged to Mike Ondrink, the husband. He was arrested at Pittsburg and brought back on a murder charge.

What was declared to be the biggest moonshine whisky producer in the state, running day and night shifts of operators and turning out 20 gallons of liquor every 24 hours, has been discovered in the mountains of Raleigh county. The still, for which 12 secret locations had been used in succession on the same farm, was of 50-gallon capacity and was constructed of galvanized washtubs, galvanized iron pipes and a copper coil.

It was seized by officers of the state prohibition department, including James Cain, Lloyd Adkins and W. R. Reed and Howard C. Smith, detective, and taken to Charleston.

This still, it was said by the officers, has been responsible for the death of at least two men, one in a fight over it and the other of a man who died as the result of drinking the liquor distilled in it. The operators of the still were not captured, though their identity is said to be known by the officers, who expect to arrest them later. Ted Jarrell, an aged man, who is alleged to have been employed by the operators of the still as a lookout to give warning of the approach of officers, was arrested and taken to Charleston.

CASH REGISTER IN RESTAURANT RIFLED

Another petty theft was added to the series of robberies perpetrated in Chester within the last few weeks, when two unidentified men rifled the cash register in the restaurant operated by Mrs. R. C. Cuppy in Carolina avenue late Friday afternoon. A sum of money estimated at about six dollars was taken.

Driving up to the front of the restaurant in an automobile at a time when the restaurant was without patrons, two men entered the store and engaged Mrs. Cuppy in conversation. One of the men told the proprietress that he noticed smoke issuing from an upstairs window. When the woman went to investigate the two emptied the cash register.

Police were notified of the theft but have been unable to apprehend the culprits. The theft is the sixth of a similar nature to be successfully perpetrated here recently.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

THE utility of the motor car is no longer confined to the masculine side of the family. The woman of today, in her own important sphere of social, business and charitable duties, is also turning to the motor car as a means toward the more efficient conduct of her affairs.

The trend of feminine thought in this direction finds definite expression in the increasingly large number of Paige Light Sixes sold to women.

There can be no doubt that the smart five-passenger Paige Glenbrook admirably meets the requirements of the feminine motorist. It is a car of mechanical excellence, a car of luxurious comfort and, quite as important, a car noted for its ease of control.

Of course, you can better judge this Paige model when you have seen it and enjoyed a trial ride. All we ask is the privilege of making a single demonstration.

MURDER MYSTERY WITNESS FOUND

Hobart Grimm, Missing for Three Months, Returns to Brooke County—Posts Bond for Appearance In Court.

Hobart Grimm, aged 23, missing three months and wanted as a witness in the murder case of Stephen Galchek, 35, Pittsburg floral decorator, surrendered to Brooke county authorities yesterday. He gave $1,000 bond for his appearance as a witness against Mike Ondrinc, of Pittsburg, and his wife, known as Mine, Stanley, former Follansbee clairvoyant, who are held in Brooke county on first degree murder charges.

Grimm, who is better known as "Pittsburg," was apprehended by Sheriff John Litton and Deputy Stevens in Main street, Wellsville. Grimm told the officers how he had come back to defend himself from a cleverly concocted scheme which he had learned Mike Ondrinc and Madame Stanley were "framing" against him in which they would attempt to show that he had murdered Galchek.

He stated that he had nothing to do with the crime and could bring witnesses before the court showing that he left Follansbee on February 1, going to Bellaire, where he visited relatives for three days and that he was groundhog hunting with two cousins on February 2, the day of the murder.

"Do you think I would come back if I killed the man?" Grimm asked the officers. "No, and you never would have got me, only I wanted to come back and clear my name," he said, later telling how he had spent forty-nine months in Moundsville penitentiary, "and I would rather die and go to hell than go back to that place," he continued.

According to his own story Grimm left Follansbee and went directly to Cleveland where he shipped out on a freighter on the Great Lakes. On his first trip the boat stopped at Lorain, Ohio, and there he interviewed Madame Stanley who had established headquarters as a fortune teller and where she was later arrested. After his visit there he stayed continually at his work on the lakes, shipping to Duluth, Minn., an other western points but when he learned that he was to be the victim of the Ondrinc's scheme, he started for home he said.

The Ondrincs are charged with murdering Galchek, after he had entered suit against the Madame for the recovery of money loaned her at different times, amounting to hundreds of dollars. The Madame was arrested after she presented a check bearing Galchek's name, to the amount of $5,000. She was first held for forgery charge and skipped a bond of $3,500. During her absence the murderer's crime developed and the body of Galchek was taken from the river at Yorkville with wrists in handcuffs. The handcuffs, it has developed belonged to Mike Ondrinc, the husband. He was arrested at Pittsburg and brought back on a murder charge.

PREPARING FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Gustavus Kirby Returns from Belgium With Report on the Plans for Big Games.

By JACK VEICK.

NEW YORK, July 10.—President Gustavus Kirby, of the American Olympic committee, is filled with praise for the fine co-operation of the Belgian Olympic committee and the American Army of Occupation in connection with the coming visit of the American team to Antwerp.

Kirby has just returned from a trip to Belgium, where he found preparations under way that, because of their scope, frankly, astounded him. On President Kirby's statement that the Belgians and America's army officials abroad are working ceaselessly to make America's participation a complete success is borne out by an analysis of his report. During his stay in Belgium the president of the committee completed almost every detail necessary for the reception, housing and training of the score or more teams which will represent this country in the Olympic games. In these efforts he was given every assistance by both Belgium and Generals Sage and Allen of the Army of Occupation, and United States Ambassador Whitlock. This co-operation on the part of the American government and the Belgians surpasses any previous efforts in past Olympiads, indicating clearly that the Olympic games have reached the high plane of friendly international sport rivalry which was the original hope of the promoters and sponsors of the contest.

Through the courtesy and assistance of the Belgian Olympic committee, Kirby was able to secure a palatial school building in the heart of Antwerp as the quarters for the American teams. The building, which occupies an entire block, is quadrangular in shape, enclosing a large central, park-like court. Accommodations are available for some 400 athletes, with sleeping quarters for teams, huge kitchens, mess halls, shower baths and complete sanitary facilities. Special locker and sleeping equipment is to be supplied by the Belgian committee. The American Army headquarters at Coblenz will furnish scores of army lorries to convey the athletes to and from the scene of practice and competition.

Training facilities will be available for the track and field athletes at the Olympic Stadium, the Antwerp Football Park and an immense aviation field not far from the center of the city. Similar arrangements have been completed for the swimmers, oarsmen, gymnasts, boxers, wrestlers and other contestants. For the army polo, rifle and riding teams special provision has been made to give the individual members every training benefit of the great army camp at Coblenz.

Be it politics, baseball, football, basketball, or what not, Ohio is not in the shade. This time its baseball, and at Massillon. ## ACTIVITY IS DESIRE OF EX-CHAMP O'DOWD

Comes word now that Mike O'Dowd, ex-middleweight champion, who lost the title to Johnny Wilson of New York, and who defeated Welterweight Jack Britton in Canton recently, isn't going to cool his heels before making another effort to secure a return match with Wilson.

O'Dowd has fought twice on cards in western towns, but he's hankering to go back east for the purpose of getting something definite from Wilson, whose record showing against Soldier Bartfield, a lighter boxer, was sorrowful.

Following O'Dowd's draw with Battling Ortega at Portland, the St. Paul Irishman this week at Pocatello, Id., was awarded a referee's decision when his opponent, Gordon McKay, who claims the middleweight championship of the northwest, refused to answer the bell at the opening of the thirteenth round. It was to have been 15-round battle.

"The Courage of Marge O'Doone Coming to the Ceramic."

The big Vitagraph special production from James Oliver Curwood's famous novel, "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," will be shown at the Ceramic theatre all next week. It is a story of strong men and brave hearts living in the broad expanse of territory north of 53. The players, everyone a star, braved the dangers of a blizzard in the Rocky mountains in order to get realism. The picture was taken in Truckee, far away from the regular trails, an unbroken wilderness. Here some of the most thrilling scenes of the picture were enacted amid real dangers under the direction of David Smith.

The players went after realism and they got it. James O'Neill, who plays Mukoki, a faithful Indian, was severely bitten by savage dogs in an effort to get realism.

There is a strong love interest running through the feature, and the element of suspense, introduced early in the story is maintained until the final close-out.

"The courage of Marge O'Doone" is different from other motion pictures. It is a classic and one that will endure for years. Every detail is absolutely correct. The film is instructive as well as entertaining. It carries the spectator through a romantic stretch of country accessible only to the few. All the thrills of a trip through the Arctic regions can be experienced while the spectator remains comfortably seated in the theatre. The production is so realistic that a person becomes absorbed in the action and is forgetful of all that surrounds him. He is living in the great Northwest.

The cast includes Pauline Starke, Niles Welch, George Stanley, Jack Curtis, William Dyer, Boris Karloff, Billie Bennett and James O'Neill.

NEWELL CLUB BOOKS GAMES

The Newell Hy-Kys are scheduled to invade Beaver county, Pa., Tuesday afternoon for a game with the Georgetown Independents. It was announced today by Joe Dickey, former manager, now in charge of the bookings.

The Georgetown aggregation has met quite a few of the independent clubs in this district and although the Pennsylvanians have established no brilliant streak of victories they have, nevertheless, proved themselves capable opponents. They will play the Newell club a return game at Newell the following Friday night.

The following players, said Dickey, will go to Georgetown for Tuesday's game: Rager, Deemer, Dickey, Riser, Garvey, Collins, Allison, Finley, Davis and Hoy.

COLORED CLUB TO PLAY PYLE'S TEAM

Salineville Club Fails to Reply to Either of the Two Communications Sent There by Manager Pyle.

Unable to get even a peep out of Salineville's baseball club, Manager Shel Pyle, of the East Liverpool Independents, today refused to solicit further and announced that the Molbrough A. C. of Wellsville, the fastest colored nine in this section, will be at West End park Sunday. The game will begin at the usual hour, 3:15 o'clock.

The Molbroughs are a fast, clean lot of players and have established a name for themselves in this part of the valley. They hold a victory over the East Liverpool Helms club, obtained here over a week ago, which stamps them as worthy foes of the city's representative squad. The Helms were carded to clash with the Wellsville tossers last night at Central park, but it was found necessary to postpone the engagement when it was found that the diamond at the park was covered with water in places.

The fore part of the week Manager Pyle wired to Joe McNicol, catcher on the Salineville aggregation, asking his terms for a game in East Liverpool and return contest at Salineville. McNicol failed to reply to the wire. Several days afterwards Pyle wrote a letter, which must have gone the same way as the telegram for nothing more was heard. Pyle said today that he would like to know their reasons for not wanting to come in, anyway.

PREPARING FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Gustavus Kirby Returns from Belgium With Report on the Plans for Big Games.

By JACK VEICK.

NEW YORK, July 10.—President Gustavus Kirby, of the American Olympic committee, is filled with praise for the fine co-operation of the Belgian Olympic committee and the American Army of Occupation in connection with the coming visit of the American team to Antwerp.

Kirby has just returned from a trip to Belgium, where he found preparations under way that, because of their scope, frankly, astounded him. On President Kirby's statement that the Belgians and America's army officials abroad are working unceasingly to make America's participation a complete success is borne out by an analysis of his report. During his stay in Belgium the president of the committee completed almost every detail necessary for the reception, housing and training of the score or more teams which will represent this country in the Olympic games. In these efforts he was given every assistance by both Belgian and General Sage and Allen of the Army of Occupation, and United States Ambassador Whitlock. This co-operation on the part of the American government and the Belgians surpasses any previous efforts in past Olympiads, indicating clearly that the Olympic games have reached the high plane of friendly international sport rivalry which was the original hope of the pioneers and sponsors of the contest.

Through the courtesy and assistance of the Belgian Olympic committee, Kirby was able to secure a partial school building in the heart of Antwerp as the quarters for the American teams. The building, which occupies an entire block, is quadrangular in shape, enclosing a large central, park-like court. Accommodations are available for some 400 athletes, with sleeping quarters for teams, huge kitchens, mess halls, shower baths and complete sanitary facilities. Special locker and sleeping equipment is to be supplied by the Belgian committee. The American Army headquarters at Coblenz will furnish scores of army lorries to convey the athletes to and from the scene of practice and competition.

Training facilities will be available for the track and field athletes at the Olympic Stadium, the Antwerp Football Park and an immense aviation field not far from the center of the city. Similar arrangements have been completed for the swimmers, oarsmen, gymnasts, boxers, wrestlers and other contestants. For the army polo, rifle and riding teams special provision has been made to give the individual members every training benefit of the great army camp at Coblenz.

MASSILLON IS EASY WINNER

Central Steel Chalks Up 25th Consecutive Victory.

Be it politics, baseball, football, basketball, or what not, Ohio is not in the shade. This time its baseball, and at Massillon. The Central Steel Club there Wednesday chalked up its twenty-fifth consecutive victory of the season, with the Republic Truck team of Omaha, Neb., as their opponents. The score was 6-0. Pitcher Paul Carpenter of the Massillon club held the Nebraskaans with six hits and retired batter after batter in the 1-2-3 order in the first five innings. Center Fielder Hartle of the Centrals had three hits, one of them a three-bagger.

Star for a day—Welsh of the A's. His homer in the first inning with two men on gave the Mackmen the necessary margin against the White Sox.

Jones Has Battle. Jimmy Jones of Alliance, one of Mick Stambaugh's star welters, will have a battle on his hands tonight when he meets Dutch Powell, Barberton's soldier boxer, at Mahoning Park, Leavittsburg. Powell holds a knockout victory over Joe Pick and a win over Henry Kirchstein of Cleveland. Powell met Jones once before when both lads were in Camp Sherman and in that bout he more than held his own.

ACTIVITY IS DESIRE OF EX-CHAMP O'DOWD

Comes word now that Mike O'Dowd, ex-middleweight champion, who lost the title to Johnny Wilson of New York, and who defeated Welterweight Jack Britton in Canton recently, isn't going to cool his heels before making another effort to secure a return match with Wilson.

O'Dowd has fought twice on cards in western towns, but he's hankering to go back east for the purpose of getting something definite from Wilson, whose record showing against Soldier Bartfield, a lighter boxer, was sorrowful.

Following O'Dowd's draw with Battling Ortega at Portland, the St. Paul Irishman this week at Pocatello, Id., was awarded a referee's decision when his opponent, Gordon McKay, who claims the middle-weight championship of the northwest, refused to answer the bell at the opening of the thirteenth round. It was to have been a 15-round battle.

NEWELL CLUB BOOKS GAMES

Scheduled to Play Georgetown Nine Two Games.

The Newell Hy-Kys are scheduled to invade Beaver county, Pa., Tuesday afternoon for a game with the Georgetown Independents. It was announced today by Joe Dickey, former manager, now in charge of the bookings.

The Georgetown aggregation has met quite a few of the independent clubs in this district and although the Pennsylvanians have established no brilliant streak of victories they have, nevertheless, proved themselves capable opponents. They will play the Newell club a return game at Newell the following Friday night.

The following players, said Dickey, will go to Georgetown for Tuesday's game: Rager, Deemer, Dickey, Riser, Garvey, Collins, Allison, Finley, Davis and Hoy.

MRS. WILSON TAKES TREATMENT; USES REESE FORMULA R-11 WITH MARVELOUS SUCCESS

Overcomes Disorders of Long Standing by the Use of Famous Remedy

Mrs. Maude Wilson, who resides at 141 Orelie Street, Clarksville, W. Va., says she has taken a barrel of medicine without relief. One bottle of Reese Formula R-11 restored her and in the statement below she tells how it accomplished its work:

"My stomach and kidneys have given me trouble for long time," said Mrs. Wilson. "I believe I have taken a barrel of medicine but none of it ever did any good until I began taking the Reese Formula R-11. I had suffered terribly from indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite. I couldn't sleep and hated to think of eating, knowing full well the way I would suffer if I did."

"I have taken but one bottle of the Reese Formula R-11 and it has put my system in such shape that I can now eat anything. My kidneys feel fine, I have no indigestion and I feel better generally than I ever thought it possible to feel. I want to recommend it because I know it to be a wonderful remedy and hope that sufferers from stomach, liver or kidneys will give it a trial."

If you wish more information, write direct to the Medical Advisor, Medical Department, The Reese Formula Co., Huntington, W. Va.

SAKEWAWIN IN INDIAN MEANS "I AM YOURS"

It is Marge O'Donne's Endearing Name for David Raine.

"Good night, Sakewawin." That was Marge O'Donne's parting word to David Raine, and it was said in the presence of the brutal Hauck, who had brought her up from childhood, and of the still more brutal Brokaw, who had just bought her. David didn't know the meaning of the Indian word, but he felt that it must be some term of endearment. The simple word, however, nearly caused murder right then and there.

"What did she mean when she called you that—Sakewawin?" demanded Brokaw. "What did she mean?"

"She was looking at you when she said 'good night,' lied David. "What does it mean? Sakewawin—I never heard of it."

"When a girl says that, it means she belongs to you," answered Brokaw. "In Indian it means possession. And, of course, you are right. She said it to me. She is mine. She belongs to me. I own her."

This is the beginning of the love story of Marge O'Donne, which is told so splendidly by James Oliver Curwood in his great novel of the Canadian Northwest, "The Courage of Marge O'Donne." Vitagraph has made it into a wonderful motion picture play, and it will be shown at the Ceramic theatre all next week. Brokaw said that Marge belonged to him, but the girl loved David and said so thru the Indian word. And it took a brave heart and many thrilling adventures before David was able to prove to Brokaw that the girl was the one to make the choice.

SEEK IMPROVEMENT OF DEPOT ROAD NEAR SALEM

Licensed to Wed.
Marriage license has been issued to Brady McCune and Grace Petty, both of East Liverpool.

FARMERS NOT OPTIMISTIC OVER WHEAT PROSPECTS

Farmers in the central part of the county are ready for wheat cutting, but they are not optimistic as to the prospects for the crop. One farmer stated that he did not expect over four bushels to the acre from forty acres. Others say that some of their fields will not be cut, unless it is to get the timothy that has supplanted the wheat. A good field is the exception. Much of the wheat is now ready for the reaper, but the farmer hesitates about going into the grain as the reaper will sink into the ground owing to the continuous rain.

Corn prospects are bright. Oats are looking good, and as a rule the meadows promise heavy yields. Clover is ready to be cut. If the weather remains dry, the farmers claim that they need a few weeks of dry weather to take care of the hay and grain.

beaten by twenty thousand and that seeming defeat was the very base upon which this happy ceremony has been constructed. The Almighty does not take us into his confidence. Guided by our conscience this victory has been brought about because we held to the things we believed were right in our state affairs and we shall do the same in the national contest. I have something more than a belief; it amounts to a deep conviction in the new order of things. A new day with the guarantee of progressive government will be adopted by the people of the nation and the election of Roosevelt and myself will be but the expression of the people that they in turn feel their well being lies in the dawn of tomorrow and not the twilight of yesterday."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, vice-presidential nominee, arrives this afternoon. Governor Cox announced that the balance of the day would be given over to conferences with his running mate who leaves for Washington to-night.

POTTERS' MEET IS ADJOURNED

Wage Increases Will Be Sought By Sanitary Ware
Workers.

Wage increases ranging from 25 to 70 per cent above the present scale will be sought by the sanitary branch of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters at the biennial conference with the Sanitary Manufacturers' association at Atlantic City early in September.

A tentative wage schedule to replace the existing agreement which expires November 1st was drawn during the closing sessions of the annual convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters which came to a close Saturday afternoon in Odd Fellows' hall, Atlantic City. More than 140 resolutions on wage proposals were discussed before a tentative scale was framed.

These officers were installed at the meet: President, Edward Menge, East Liverpool; first vice president, Frank H. Hutchins, Trenton; second vice president, George Chadwick, East Liverpool; third vice president, Lewis Drifer, Trenton; fourth vice president, S. M. Moore, Trenton; fifth vice president, George H. Cartidge, Trenton; sixth vice president, T. M. Woods, Sebring; seventh vice president, J. McGillivray, East Liverpool, who succeeds Thomas Moss of Tiffin, O.; secretary-treasurer, J. T. Wood, East Liverpool.

East Liverpool delegates to the national conclave are expected to return home Tuesday.

applied, he stated, to the Single Taxers as well.

J. A. H. Hopkins, of Jersey City, chairman of the executive committee of the Committee of Forty Eight, announced in the convention shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon that the details now being worked out would require much time. He asked that no specific time be set for the first session, marking the beginning of the new party.

Christiansen then put a motion calling for a joint session with the other elements "an appropriate time" and this was adopted. The hope was expressed that such a session could be held tomorrow.

appeal to the rural portion of the nation."

Political leaders in Ohio and Indiana have reported to Harding headquarters that the high cost of living is one of the great issues of the campaign in their states. They say that it overshadows any other issue, and that any suggestions or recommendations offering a remedy arouse the interest and holds the attention of the people more than any other discussion. At a conference held yesterday by Senator Harding with National Chairman Will H. Hayes and Harry M. Daugherty, of Ohio, member of the Republican executive committee, the political campaigns in Ohio and Indiana were given consideration.

Because of the feeling of certainty that the hottest fight is to come in the middle west Senator Harding adheres to his determination to stand by his earlier decision to remain at Marion for the greater part of the time and to conduct his "front porch" campaign.

Hayes reported to Senator Harding that requests for visits and speeches from the senator are coming in from every state. He said that more than 600 had been received at the Chicago headquarters during the past week, and that he had left these requests with Senator Harry A. New, in charge of the speaking campaign, to be answered.

Senator Harding admitted that he had received and had been forced to decline many similar requests. "There has been no alteration in our affection or in our judgment for a front porch campaign," the senator announced.

Chairman Hayes left last night for Columbus, O., and tomorrow he will go to New York. He announced he would return to Columbus for a meeting of the national Republican executive committee, July 21, and come to Marion for the notification on July 22.

Daugherty, who returned to Columbus last night, stated that George Harris of Cleveland, member of the Ohio Republican committee, had investigated the Republican gubernatorial row in West Virginia. As the rival Republican candidates had agreed to carry the same set of Harding and Coolidge electors on their tickets, the national campaign was not involved.

An effort will be made, however, to compose the differences of the rival Republican factions in the state.

Negro Republicans throughout the country are assuring Senator Harding of their support. He received letters yesterday from Col. R. S. Abbot, of the Chicago Defender; John W. Thompson, chairman of the executive committee of the New York state Republican council, which claims a membership of 300,000 colored men and women voters, and from Rev. N. T. Lane, pastor of a Colored Baptist church in Kansas City, stating that the colored

RAIL MEN FILE SUIT ANSWER

Action to Prevent Withdrawal of Freedom Lodge's Charter.

An answer has been filed by the plaintiffs in the case of Freedom Lodge No. 323, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, against the national brotherhood, seeking to prevent the withdrawal of the Freedom lodge's charter, on the rule to show cause why the injunction now in existence should not be dissolved.

This case has been continued to final hearing in an opinion filed some time ago by Judge George A. Baldwin. The defendants in their answer deny the jurisdiction of the court to grant the motion of the defendants, say that general rule No. 11, the basis of the controversy in this case, is illegal and void because it is in contravention of the constitution of the United States and the constitution of Pennsylvania and aver that nothing is contained in the reasons in support of the motion which would authorize the court to grant the motion. This answer was returnable yesterday. August 17 has been fixed as the date of final hearing.

Holt, Holt & Richardson, attorneys for the plaintiff, make answer to the rule. They go into the history of the case, especially that of recent date when Reed & Reed, attorneys for the brotherhood officers, sought to bring a dissolution of the injunction. Denial is made that President W. G. Lee, of the grand lodge, has any power whatever to sit in trial upon the officers of Freedom local upon the order of revocation.

No date has yet been set for the hearing of the injunction proceedings brought against the grand lodge by the Wellsville lodge to prevent grand lodge officials from confiscating funds in the Peoples' National bank here belonging to the local organization. The injunction was granted several months ago.

LEARN-TO-SWIM WEEK.

This is "Learn-to-Swim" week in East Liverpool. Under the auspices of the East Liverpool chapter of the American Red Cross, which is promoting a nation-wide campaign to decrease the death toll from drowning, swimming classes will be conducted at the Y. M. C. A. na tatarium daily, commencing today and continuing until Saturday.

Every man, woman, boy and girl in the East Liverpool district who has not mastered the art of swimming should take advantage of the classes which will be in charge of expert adult instructors. No charge whatever is connected with the instruction. All expenses will be paid by the Red Cross chapter, while the Y. M. C. A., which is co-operating in the movement, has offered the use of the bathing pool in the institution building without cost.

The increasing number of deaths from drowning annually prompted the Red Cross to launch the "learn-to-Swim" movements. The week of July 12-17 has been designated for the purpose. And practically every chapter of the mercy agency, realizing that a great percentage of the people are not familiar with the art of swimming, is participating in the campaign.

There should be no excuse for the public neglecting the opportunity offered by a course of swimming lessons. The knowledge of swimming should be acquired. With the vacation season in full swing, scores going to the seashore, lakes or on camping trips along a river or creek, it is well to be fortified with this art.

If you have not enrolled in the Red Cross swimming classes, do so tonight.

WORK FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

Mr. Harding and Mr. Coolidge are associating themselves more closely in the campaign than candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency have been accustomed to do, and according to Mr. Harding, they will pursue the same policy in office if elected. This plan undoubtedly strikes a popular chord. The public has long wanted to see the vice-presidency made a more responsible job, and it has often been suggested that the vice-president take over some of the duties of a greatly overburdened president.

Many vice-presidents have wanted more work, and many presidents have wanted to unload some of their heavy responsibilities, and would willingly have let the vice-president act as an assistant president. Some presidents have sought the advice of their associates more than others have, but on the whole there does not seem to have been much accomplished along this line. Nearly all the chief executives have soon got into the habit of conducting their office as if the vice-president were in reality nothing but presiding officer of the Senate—which is all that the Constitution makes him, while his superior is functioning—and nearly all the vice-presidents have soon settled down as resignedly as they could to the same small routine. Thus by law and by tradition, the vice-president is almost precisely such an officer as speaker of the House, except that the former is chosen by popular vote.

It is unfortunate, because there is always a chance that the presiding officer of the Senate may be thrust into the presidential chair, and it seems logical and sensible to use the vice-presidency as a training school for the presidency. The lieutenant-governorship in Massachusetts has long been regarded in that light. Mr. Coolidge's experience thus gives him special qualifications for co-operating with his chief, both before and after election. If these two men can redeem the vice-presidency from its low estate, with or without new legislation on the subject, they will have wrought a desirable reform.

HOPE IN THE COUNTRY.

In most sections of the United States houses for rent are far more plentiful in the country than in the city, and the rents are far lower. Moreover in the small town or along the country road a house nearly always has a garden with it, and often a small orchard. The place may constitute a veritable little "farm," of one to half a dozen acres. It is strange that people in the industrial communities have not taken advantage of this situation to a greater extent.

Most of the crowded cities have large numbers of such country places available within a radius of 10 to 25 miles—distances covered easily enough by trolley or automobile. The difference in rent is usually more than enough to cover the additional trolley fare, and often enough to support a small car that could not possibly be afforded in the city. Besides, there is the big asset of the garden and fruit trees, and the inestimable benefit to body and mind of living in a quiet place, with good air and plenty of room for the children to romp around in. Many accustomed city pleasures may be missed, but the compensations are great, and not the least of these compensations is found in the money saved by the lack of incentive to spend.

"Back to the country" is taking a new meaning. Most city folk have come from the country, and want to get back sooner or later. The dream is now realizable to the city mechanic or clerk no less than to the millionaire, with this difference—that it usually costs the millionaire more to have a country home, and costs his humble fellow-citizen less. It would pay many a family, struggling with high prices and rents, and unable to procure a comfortable home in the city, to go out into the country and look around.

The United States government is forced to pay 6 per cent interest for money, and yet a lot of people keep right on throwing it away as if it were not worth anything.

There's one very simple way to improve the postal service—stop writing letters. By a similar process, food could be cheapened very quickly—stop eating.

NEW YORK LETTER

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK July 12.—The greatest mystery in the Joseph Elwell murder mystery is Elwell himself. It so happens that I used to see the whisk wizard frequently. It was about four years ago and he lived on my street and on Sunday mornings he generally stood in front of a hotel on an upper Broadway corner. He seemed then to be hunting adventure with the ladies. His clothes and general makeup were as spotless as the ever present white carnation in his lapel.

This little island is full of types and characters. There is the rounder, the bachelor with his mysterious apartment, the sporty gambler and the social butterfly that continually breaks into Town Topics for squiring some married woman about.

Elwell was all of these—plus something more. He had character. He was intelligent. He was suave. He knew the meaning of savoir faire. Everybody knew him. He apparently had no enemies. His characteristics on the surface were as clean cut as a cameo. And yet he lived an odd and mysterious life.

Beyond the race track, the stock market, the whist table and the cabaret, the touring car Elwell there was another Elwell—an Elwell who left his wife and son to shift for themselves and chose to live alone in a big house in Seventieth street.

The house is just one of a row of brown stone fronts with a small stone porch out front. It was just far enough away from the bright lights to be handy. It is in an eminently respectable neighborhood, but now the house is in dispute and the owners complain they cannot rent it.

Elwell was a man of many masks. Men who are invariably suave and polite are usually masked. The type of man of which Elwell is an example is the type that invites crime, charm, money, solitude. While there is no all night life now—ostensibly—there is still a subterranean all night town that goes on just the same. It is not for the masses. It is for the rich. It bubbles with scandal and intrigue.

It was in this world that Elwell was at his best. Several intriguants had keys to his home and walked in and out at all hours of the night. They even had their own powders and perfumes in private lockers. Some menage!
